Removal of Courthouse Tree Stirs Up Hot Controversy

A PROPOSAL to remove a sycamore tree from the Courthouse grounds brought forth a storm of objections from clubs, organizations and individuals today.

The county commissioners' office has received many protests from citizens wanting an explanation of the removal

The tree, located at the southwest corner of the Courthouse property is being removed by Leo Savage, of the Marion Expert Tree Co He started the project yesterday afternoon by removing several limbs

The tree, believed to be 125 years old is to be replaced by a permanent pine tree about 17 feet in height Cost of the removal and replacement is being borne by the local Retail Merchants' Division of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, who received county commissioners' approval for the project

THE MOVE TO place a permanent evergreen tree at the Courthouse has been under consideration by the retail merchants for several months A spokesman for the group said it had considered planting a tree there last year when plans were being made for the group s annual Christmas observance

When this year's observance plans were started the discussions were renewed and a committee was selected to arrange for the placing of a permanent tree| The committee contacted the board of commissioners and received verbal approval of the plan A plan was then discussed for removing all the present sycamore trees and replacing them with evergreens However, the retail group found that plan to be too expensive and settled for replacing one tree

THE SPOKESMAN for the retail merchants said today the committee had met with the commissioners and had received their verbal agreement to proceed with the work

The spokesman termed the tree a public nuisance because birds roost in it offering a hazard to pedestrians who stand under it while waiting for a traffic light to change The retail merchants believe birds won't roost in a pine tree

At various times in the past there have been proposals to remove the courthouse trees, but chiefly for sentimental reasons, groups of citizens have interceded to prevent it

The latest controversy over the trees came two years ago when commissioners had the tree limbs cut off to prevent birds perching above the sidewalk

THE LATE George N Hinds, old time Marion newspaper man who was recognized as one of the best informed students of Marion County history, wrote in one of his newspaper articles that the sycamores at the courthouse were the oldest living things in the city He said they were planted at the time the city was platted That would make them more than 125 years old since the city was laid out in 1823

A L Hamburg chairman of the retail merchants committee named to study the plan said this morning he had received verbal agreement from all three commissioners two weeks ago.

RAY REIDENBAUGH, only commissioner who could be reached for comment today, said the board did not take a formal vote on the proposal but had agreed to its removal informally. The other two commissioners are Carl Lehner and Luther Mitchell.

Walter Guthrie, commissioners' clerk said he had been told by Mr Savage, who is cutting

Much smaller then, the tree is pictured in front of the old Courthouse, which was torn down in 1884 to make way for the newer structure Several of the other trees in the picture have since been removed Leading the company is Capt Alfred Brown At the right end of the second row back of him is Henry H Cunningham, father of Miss Grace Cunningham of 707 Mt Vernon Ave and Mrs George Frank of 490 E Church St, who own the photograph The soldiers, all now deceased, are facing southwest at the junction of Main and Center Sts

Reds Make New Buffer Zone Offer

Approximates U.N. Demands, Sends Truce Hopes Soaring

MUNSAN, KOREA, Oct 31—(AP)—Red truce negotiators offered today to create a buffer zone along their version of the present battle line in Korea

They called it their 'last and best proposal'

The surprise Red offer approached demands of the United Nations command It brought the two sides closer together than they ever have been on the question

Hopes soared in this truce camp But a UN command spokesman said there were two important differences between the new Red offer and the Allied proposal:

1 The Reds want to keep Kaesong, former truce talks site. The Allies want to take it over

2 The Communist version of the battle line is two or three miles south of where the Allies place it

These differences were pointed out by Col Andrew J Kinney, chief U N. liaison officer.

Rain Slows Fighting

U S. 8TH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, KOREA, Oct. 31—(AP)—Marauding patrols took over the quiet, rain-swept Korean battle fronts today,

The largest fight reported by the U S Eighth Army in a communique involved a company of Chinese The Reds attacked at 4 a m southeast of Kumsong in the center of the front behind a heavy mortar barrage.

They forced Allied outposts to retreat to their main lines, but the Reds in turn were beaten back in an hour-long fight.

Otherwise the Eighth Army said, there was "no significant action"

Rains almost washed out the air war The Fifth Air Force reported only 318 sorties up to nightfall Seventy-nine were in support of ground troops

Charles P Taft Cincinnati lawyer and member of the National Laymen's Committee sponsoring RIAL, praised highly the local effort, in presenting to Marion a bronze plaque in the presence of an audience of more than 200, at Trinity Baptist Church Acceptance in behalf of the local community was made by Dr G G Nuetzel and Rev R W. Goes Into Effect Tomorrow

Numbers Writers Here, Elsewhere Throw in Towel

Times were never so tough in the house Lady Luck operates just beyond the law

Tomorrow all her chancy sons have a rendezvous to keep with their Uncle Sams tax collector, The Associated Press reported And the very thought of it was hurting, bad

They had built their lives on a plush two-to-one proposition—of the two great certainties, death and taxes, only one bothered gamblers

Effective tomorrow the government has added taxes

It almost looked like a plain tax law could do what the law of averages never did—turn the odds against the gamblers

Rumor had it a Marion numbers writer had thrown in the towel and another was planning to quit

In Cleveland, an admitted numbers game boss predicted the rich racket would fold in that city at least

"Gov't Don't Bet Back"

A bookie in New Orleans (who said he'd rather his name not be used) declared:

'This is going to put me under. The government don't bet it back"

Like many another furtive gent who said paying taxes would drive him out of business, the New Orleans horse parlor host did not say whether he was really quitting, or going underground

A few numbers vendors in New Orleans applied for unemployment relief

The gambler s tax is part of the new revenue bill going into effect tomorrow, with total annual returns estimated at $5 691 000,000 House of Representatives tax technicians guessed, after consulting with the treasury, that gamblers might be stuck for about $400,000 000 of this No enforcement plans have been disclosed

The tax does not apply to legal pari-mutuel operations 'social' or "friendly" games of chance, church bingo games or office football pools

Two Requirements

The law makes two calls on all professional gamblers

1 They must register and buy a $50 occupation stamp, which must be posted prominently in their place of business Gamblers whose hat is their office can carry their stamp there

2 They must pay a ten per cent

Awaits Arrival of Princess, Philip

Official Washington Set To Greet Royal Couple

WASHINGTON, Oct 31—(AP)—Official Washington put on its best bib and tucker today to greet Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

And in spite of possible showers, thousands of men and women in the street planned to join in the capital's televised welcome for the British royal couple on their first visit to the United States

President and Mrs Truman and their daughter Margaret headed the list of government officials foreign diplomats and other dignitaries meeting Elizabeth and her blond, handsome husband on their arrival by plane from Montreal at 4 p m

Television and radio networks set up coast-to-coast coverage of the event.

A 21-gun salute was to touch off a rapid-fire succession of receptions dinners and other ceremonies for the royal visitors The first a reception by some 900 news correspondents as soon as the couple had a chance to freshen up and sample American-style tea

Blair House Guests

Elizabeth and Philip are guests of the President at Blair House during their 45-hour visit

Tonight at 8 p m. (EST) there s a presidential dinner—very formal, limited to about 20 guests because of cramped dining space in the Truman family s temporary residence The gold table service, and the blue-bordered china bought by Franklin D Roosevelt, will be used.

Afterwards there's a reception for some 100 persons—Supreme Court justices, cabinet members, other high officials and their wives

Then Elizabeth and her consort will be free to retire to their adjacent two-rooms-and-bath suites (one pale green, the other peach) and rest for a second round of official entertaining tomorrow

Yesterday Montreal put on the greatest show in its history for the royal couple An estimated 1 500-000 persons caught a glimpse of the smiling pair on a 40-mile procession The crowd was so dense the cavalcade was forced to a complete halt several times to have the way cleared

This is the first visit of British royalty to Washington since the princess' parents, King George and Queen Elizabeth, came here in the tense summer of 1939.

To Be Televised

NEW YORK, Oct 31—(AP)—Television viewers coast-to-coast will be able to see Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh late today at a reception by Washington correspondents at the Hotel Statler.

Telecasts of their arrival by plane in Washington will go only as far west as Omaha.

ABC and CBS will start their telecasts of the reception at 5 45 p m, E S T, and NBC will start at 6 p m

And you don't have to be pro-British to see that the capital is curious and somewhat impressed

12 Trapped By Mine Blast In West Virginia

KAYFORD, W Va, Oct. 31—(AP)—An explosion trapped 12 men three-quarters of a mile inside the big Truax-Traer Coal Co United No 1 mine near here early today.

The state mines department rushed all available inspectors and rescue teams to the scene, 35 miles southeast of Charleston on Cabin Creek

A report from the mine said rescuers were inside There was no word from them immediately.

H B Glasscock, a bookkeeper at Truax-Traer headquarters here, said 16 men were in the mine at the time of the explosion but 'four walked out'

He reported the other 12 'unaccounted for' The men who walked out 'apparently were not in the vicinity of the blast"

Govt. Seeks Weapon To Break Strikers' Grip on Shipping

NEW YORK Oct 31—(AP) — Federal labor officials are investigating the vast New York port strike to see whether rebel AFL longshoremen have violated the Taft-Hartley act

The National Labor Relations Board launched the probe late yesterday after receiving a complaint from the New York Shipping Association, an employers' group

In the meantime the wildcat walkout entered its 17th day today with the insurgent stevedores still in virtual control of the world s largest harbor Their strike also hit other East Coast ports

Other labor disputes also threatened the nation s maritime shipping picture

With at least 116 ships tied up, trouble was reported brewing among 12,000 East and Gulf Coast members of the AFL Masters, Mates and Pilots The ship officers and their employes, deadlocked on a new wage pact, are working 'round the clock trying to get a new agreement before a

Numbers Game Boss In Cleveland Quits

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31—(AP)—A numbers game boss forecast today that the rich racket would fold up because of the new 10 per cent federal tax on gambling

Speaking for himself, Buster Matthews of Cleveland wailed that he definitely will shut up shop, starting tomorrow, when the tax goes into effect

But other policy writers, he added will have the same trouble and probably will close too

Police estimate that Matthews illegal operations gross $1 000,000 a year. They say he is one of Cleveland's biggest operators, but they have been unable to prove it

"At least 700 old, sick and crippled-up policy writers will be without jobs," the 58-year-old Negro told a reporter in an unusual interview. 'There ll be no place but relief for them to go."

No Applications

Just how the next tax is going to affect other gamblers—mainly bookies—in Ohio was not entirely clear The Cleveland office of the Bureau of Internal Revenue received no applications for tax

Your Good Health

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Special Care for Mother Who Is Diabetic

Every mother needs medical attention during pregnancy, but the diabetic mother requires special safeguards. This is evidenced by the fact that both miscarriages and stillbirths are far more frequent among diabetic women than in those without the disease.

A woman with diabetes, for instance, has 21.4 per cent greater chance of having a miscarriage than the normal mother. Even those with a diabetic tendency have a 12 per cent higher rate of miscarriage than other women.

Stillborn children are very common in diabetic mothers. Children of diabetic mothers have a tendency to be large, fat, swollen, and sluggish; they may have a bluish color due to difficulty in breathing. Collapse of the lung is very frequent in these infants.

An infant of a diabetic mother has less than the average chance of survival during the first few days after birth. This is due to the fact that the child's pancreas is giving off an excessive amount of insulin in order to compensate for the lack of insulin in the mother.

Therefore, during the first few days after birth, the child may manufacture an excessive amount of insulin and go into shock. In such cases, the giving of large amounts of sugar by mouth and sugar solutions into a vein may be necessary. These infants should be watched with extreme care.

Of babies born to women having diabetes, more than 26 per cent weighed over 10 pounds; also, the number of premature births was up to 14 per cent. The mothers had more difficult pregnancies when diabetes and toxemia were present.

A group of six diabetic women was treated with large doses of estrogen and pregeserone substances and all managed to have live babies. It has been thought by some that large doses of stilbestrol or progesterone may be helpful in preventing many of the complications of pregnancy in these mothers.

It would seem that all pregnant women who are overweight, especially those who come from families in which diabetes is prevalent, should have a glucose tolerance test to determine whether they are diabetic or have diabetic tendencies. It is not advisable to wait until sugar is definitely discovered in the urine to determine whether diabetic tendencies are present.

Questions And Answers

R.G.: What is the cause of exfoliative dermatitis and how can it be treated?

Answer: Exfoliative dermatitis is caused, usually, by some form of allergy. Most often it follows the giving of certain drugs, such as mercury, arsenic, or bismuth. However, cases of exfoliative dermatitis have been found after the giving of penicillin and streptomycin. Recently, some excellent results in the treatment of this disease have been noted with the use of ACTH and cortisone.

Veterans and Draftees Guide — By Major Thomas M. Nial

DID YOU KNOW you could speak to your draft board face to face if you think it has given you a raw deal on a deferment?

The personal appearance is authorized in draft regulations, but you must request it at the right time—during the "appeal period."

After you register and return your draft questionnaire, you'll shortly get a little post card from our board. That's your Notice of Classification.

On the back is a section you can cut out and stick in your wallet. It gives your name, selective service number, classification and date the card was mailed.

That mailing date is mighty important. The 10-day period following the date is your "appeal period." It's the only time you're guaranteed a review of your case. After those 10 days, all you may do is "request" that you be reclassified or that your case be appealed.

During the appeal period you may do one of two things: (1) appeal directly or (2) ask for a personal appearance before the board and appeal later if the board still won't change your classification.

UNLESS YOU think you would not make too good an impression talking to your board, it would be best to take the second course. Just sit down during your appeal period and write a letter to your board. Its address is on your Notice of Classification.

All you need say is something be allowode to appear in person be allawode to appear in person before Local Board No. such-and-such to discuss my classification."

Your board will notify you when you may appear. Draft regs say you may not be represented by anyone acting as attorney. But other persons may appear with you if your board says it's okay. Ask the board's permission when you write if you want your boss to appear with you in the case of an occupational deferment, or your dependents in the case of a 3-A dependency deferment.

Here's what draft regs say about this personal appearance . . .

"At any such appearance, the registrant may discuss his classification, may point out the class or classes in which he thinks he should have been placed, and may direct attention to any information in his file which he believes the local board has overlooked or to which he believes it has not given sufficient weight."

THE REGS GO ON to say you may give the board additional information. It should be in writing, the regs say, and if given orally it "shall be summarized in writing and, in either event, shall be placed in the registrant's file."

After you appear, your board members will put their heads together to decide whether all the information they now have justifies your deferment.

Whether it then defers you or not, it will mail you another Notice of Classification card. If you're still 1-A you may then appeal. Whenever a Notice of Classification comes through, it's the signal that a 10-day appeal period has begun.

Remember that after you request a personal appearance you may not be ordered for induction until after you get that second Notice of Classification—provided of course you requested the appearance within the appeal period.

In a column next week I'll explain how to appeal.

Two Questions

THE east-coast dock strike raises two questions which have gone unanswered since the late thirties when the Communist conspiracy proved it could tie up defense production in the United States with an epidemic of strikes.

The first question is whether or not unionized workers in the United States are so poorly informed about their own problems that agents of a foreign conspiracy can hoodwink them at will.

The second question is whether or not the leaders of unions in this country will be willing in a pinch to call off their own campaign of hate and misrepresentation to present a solid front against subversives.

There is potentially a third question: whether or not union leadership, having worked so long and so hard to persuade workers that no reconciliation with management is possible, will be able to command the confidence of rank-and-file workers in a showdown with agents of the Communist conspiracy. The agents of the conspiracy promise only to do more ruthlessly and much more quickly what many union leaders have been promising—to set up an authoritarian state in place of the system now in existence.

Before the newest wave of work stoppages is over, question 1 and 2 will have to be answered—perhaps even question 3.

Barnum Was Almost Right

AWAY back in the last quarter of the 19th century, a Democratic national chairman named William H. Barnum (not to be confused with the famous P. T. Barnum) held office for 13 years. In this century, James A. Farley held the job for 8 years, but since Farley's time the turnover has been Ferris-wheelish.

The newest chairman, Frank E. McKinney, succeeds William M. Boyle, who succeeded J. Howard McGrath, who succeeded Robert E. Hannegan, who succeeded Frank C. Walker, who succeeded Edward J. Flynn, who succeeded Farley. That made 5 chairmen in 10 years. The trouble is not hard to locate.

It lies in the peculiar specifications for a national chairman. As far as the modern Democratic party is concerned, he must be a man with know-how who has learned everything, forgotten nothing, has plenty to show for the work he has done but nothing that will attract attention and with all the right connections and none of the wrong ones. That means he must belong to the Catholic Church, because that is now a Democratic tradition; be an utter stranger to the RFC, because that is a Democratic embarrassment; and be able to talk like a big-city ward heeler up North with a southern-fried accent down South. Because that is how the party gets its votes in national elections. No one congratulates a new Democratic party chairman, or a Republican chairman, either. Notes of sympathy are in order. They are here today, in the doghouse tomorrow.

Shadow of a Doubt

THE strongest challenge made so far to the national policy bristling defense is in the current issue of U.S. News & World Report.

World War III, argues this cautious publication, has been here for five years. The United States is not trying to avert war; it already is in the midst of war—the kind of war the Soviet Union intends to fight.

But this is not the imaginary war the United States is preparing to fight. "War as Russia is waging it," explains U.S. News & World Report, "aims at conquest of earning assets, not of bomb-blasted rubble."

In other words, the United States is losing World War III because it does not realize that World War III is in progress. It is getting ready for a conflict of horror and obliteration which the Kremlin has no intention of fighting. Revolution, assassination, propaganda, purges and border wars are Russia's weapons, not bombers and atom bombs. But the Soviet Union's real gains are being made without bloodshed.

Thomas E. Dewey has pointed out, as has Dorothy Thompson, that the United States is losing the war of ideas by seeming to have only one idea—that a bristling defense will discourage the Kremlin. But the idea assumes that the Kremlin's strategy is military.

In American thinking there is beginning to be at last a shadow of a doubt—a doubt that when the United States has built all the weapons its militarists say they need that it will have attained security unless it has learned in the meantime to fight the war of ideas.

Tail-Chasing De Luxe

THAT House subcommittee which has ruled out federal income taxes as a proper cost-of-living item in the Labor Department's famous price index has made itself look foolish.

In the same breath the subcommittee ruled in excise taxes as proper items to include in the index. The fact is that both excise and income taxes should be ruled out, for this reason:

The price index is the yardstick for granting wage increases and becomes an automatic price inflater if taxes are taken into consideration. Wage-price tail-chasing has been made sufficiently absurd without adding this De Luxe refinement.

Communist Infiltration

By David Lawrence

Security Board Head's Statement Scrutinized

WASHINGTON

TO WHAT extent have Communists and Communist sympathizers infiltrated the United States government and particularly the Department of State in recent years?

An answer to this question is attempted in a speech by Chairman Conrad E. Snow of the loyalty security board of the Department of State. He has made some very significant statements which unquestionably will attract the attention of congressional committees as they examine further what appears to be an official reply to various charges leveled in recent months.

LAWRENCE

The first point that strikes the eye is the argument that, even if there were Communists or sympathizers in the Department of State, they did very little harm at most. Here is the exact language by Chairman Snow on this point:

"I can say confidently that there are no known Communists in government. If there are any secret Communists—Communists who join no Communist fronts and speak no Communist sentiments—of course I cannot say, for they are not known.

"The Hiss case and the case of Judith Coplon in the Department of Justice have done more harm in terms of public confidence than any harm Hiss or Coplon ever did in the delivery of classified papers. Both worked in absolute secrecy—their best friends were ignorant of their acts. Neither would have been employed by government for a day after their acts were discovered. But a swallow does not make a summer—neither do these two cases make out an infiltration of government by Communists."

THE FOREGOING assertion will be challenged, and, in fact, is contradicted by records of the testimony made before congressional committees.

Thus, the declaration that Alger Hiss, for example, would never have been kept in government employ for a day after his acts were discovered, is not borne out by the testimony given by Whittaker Chambers, a confessed Russian spy, who has told congressional committees that as early as 1939 he notified the Department of State that Hiss had given him secret papers. The record shows that Hiss not only continued in the Department of State for years afterward, but that he played a very important part in the preparations for and in the discussions which went on at the Yalta conference as recently as 1945.

The statement by Chairman Snow says also:

"Since Dec. 17, 1947, when the President's loyalty program was implemented by directive of the loyalty review board of the Civil Service Commission, the loyalty security board of the Department of State has had before it over 500 cases of State Department employes who have been investigated for loyalty by the Federal Bureau of Investigation—the FBI—and not one case has been found of a present Communist working in the State Department.

"Over that period eight employes have been held to be security risks, but not one of those admitted present membership in the Communist party, nor was there evidence of present membership."

A READING OF the foregoing statement by those who have not followed closely the controversy over the loyalty security program would lead to the impression that infiltration in the State Department hasn't occurred because no "present" Communist can be found. The strongest argument of the anti-Communist group in America has been that former Communists either stayed on in government employ or were permitted to resign without an explanation of what harm they had done while in government employ.

In the statement above quoted, the words "present Communist" or "present membership" were not underlined by the speaker, but there are many observers who insist that the presence of former Communists today in highly confidential posts is bad security.

Chairman Snow reveals that since 1947 "about 40 other employes have elected to resign during the process of investigation and adjudication of loyalty." He adds:

"What might have been found in their cases, had they gone to hearing, of course, I do not know. But this small number—less than 50 in all—out of a department of 94,000 employes—who have either been held to be security risks or who have for one reason or another desired not to face investigation, does not indicate any noticeable infiltration of Communists in government."

WHAT IS THE importance of the word "noticeable"? It will be noted that Klaus Fuchs, who was cleared through a faulty system in which the Department of State shares responsibility, stole American atom-bomb secrets. Yet it can be said he is just one employe out of the thousands of employes of our own and foreign governments who have dealt with classified information in recent years. To use 50 in ratio to 94,000 is misleading in itself. Not all the 94,000 employes of the Department of State have anything to do with confidential information. It is a rather small group which has access to secrets, and there is no way of knowing whether the 50 who have either been dismissed or resigned had such access. The public is entitled to information on this point as well as to information as to just what part was played by Alger Hiss and others who are admitted now to have been bad security risks.

Embalmed Knowledge

By TRUMAN TWILL

DEALING again with education, a subject on which I can speak freely because I know nothing about it, a correspondent is worrying about "inbred theorists." He has an idea to chew on.

This correspondent is complaining about what happens when students preparing to hold government jobs learn things which aren't so from instructors in public administration who learned it from other instructors who didn't know the score. This misinformation is put into effect and what with one thing and another a lot of damage is done.

A few days ago while leafing through a text for a course in civics being given to children in our township school, I remembered that it was a horrible shock to learn sometime after graduation that government was vastly more complex than the civic books ever had led us students to believe it was.

If a civics book were written to reveal how government matters are handled in reality, it would be an eye-opener to most of the professors writing books on government. Some who have tried their hand at government administration and legislation themselves, have learned to their astonishment that they must have been teaching about a couple of other countries.

There should be a direct relationship between reality and theory in teaching. That is the only way to keep instructors from flunking out on their first obligation to students, which is to guide them along the path of truth. Whether the subject matter is civics, which is unreal unless it mentions Gen. Vaughan, or English composition, which is unreal unless it acknowledges that Damon Runyon also knew a little something about the written word, it needs to be checked against what is going on in the living world.

There are some things, like Latin, which can safely be embalmed. But none of the things which matter can be embalmed. Physics, for instance, has been changing so radically in the last half generation that no student who isn't given an insight into nuclear fission can call himself educated in that subject at all.

A whole set of books could be written about ideas which students learned at the knees of economic instructors that are not true now and never were true. Psychology, chemistry, sociology and certainly geography all are changing so rapidly that any teacher who nods or gets stuck with an obsolete textbook might as well be teaching ancient history.

Inbred theorists who drone on year after year within tight little dream worlds of misinformation are as ludicrous as though they were offering to tutor the young in blood-letting as a cure for chest pains, bonfires as a cure for religious doubts, or how to manufacture yokes for oxen. Except that if they let academic inbreeding go to that extreme, someone would nudge them and point to the calendar. It is the melancholy days of 1951 and all sorts of things are going on, few of which were taught to yesterday's students but all of which tomorrow's students must know.

Congress Quiz

Q—How many people work for the government?

A—During August, the total was 2,057,497, according to figures released Oct. 2 by the Senate-House Committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures. Civilians employed in the military establishment totaled 1,258,645; those in civilian agencies numbered 1,248,852.

By George E. Sokolsky

THE CAMPAIGN to make Gen. Eisenhower a presidential nominee for one of the two major political parties is now in full blast. Almost simultaneously, the "New York Herald Tribune" named him as its candidate, "Collier's" published an article by Leonard V. Finder announcing that Eisenhower would accept a nomination by either party, and a news story stated that a headquarters for him would be established at Topeka, Kan.

Even Gen. Eisenhower's most ardent supporters have to recognize that politically this is not good enough, for no direct word has come from Gen. Eisenhower. In fact, his headquarters stated:

SOKOLSKY

"This is a military headquarters and we cannot be expected to comment on the views of an editorial in a purely political matter. There is no change contemplated in Gen. Eisenhower's military status, about which this headquarters has been informed."

ADMITTEDLY, THE position of Gen. Eisenhower is difficult and embarrassing. As supreme commander of NATO, he cannot become involved in the internal politics of his own country. While serving in uniform under President Truman, he cannot oppose him politically. All this, Gen. Eisenhower was told by friendly persons before he went to Europe. He was told that such a complex situation was inevitable and that he ought to make his choice in advance of the campaign for his nomination. Others counseled him that his position in Europe would improve his political stature.

Until Gen. Eisenhower himself publicly proclaims himself a Republican, which he has never done, and that he seeks the nomination and would accept it, the politicians who control state delegations to the convention will avoid, as far as possible, commitments which may prove embarrassing to them at the convention.

GEN. EISENHOWER, furthermore, is being presented in a false light by those who are publicly supporting him. The "New York Herald Tribune" was one of the principal advocates of Wendell Willkie, which is likely to frighten middle-western Republicans.

Mr. Finder has no status in the Republican party. His claim to fame is that in 1948, Gen. Eisenhower wrote to him stating that "it is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained, and our people will have greater confidence that it is so sustained, when lifelong professional soldiers, in the absence of some obvious and overriding reason, abstain from seeking high political office. . .".

Nowhere in his article does Mr. Finder publish a statement prepared by or signed by Gen. Eisenhower acknowledging that he is a candidate and will accept if chosen. All that appears is Mr. Finder's political judgment. But there is no record to indicate that Mr. Finder's political judgment is politically important.

THE REAL DANGER for the Eisenhower candidacy is that his friends are placing him in the awkward position of being Tom Dewey's candidate supported by the internationalist crowd in the East. To professional politicians this means a split party for the following reasons:

1. It is based not on a desire to support Eisenhower but to use him to block Taft and to bring Dewey in as a compromise;

2. He is being used as a political refuge by a discredited crowd who have kept Republicans at loggerheads and defeated since 1940 when they projected Wendell Willkie. This same group is regarded as responsible for the agreement between Roosevelt and Dewey to limit the debate in 1944;

3. It is perilous to say, as Eisenhower's friends do, that if the Republicans do not nominate him, he would accept a Democratic nomination. This is an admission that he is not a Republican but a maverick who will accept any brand. Further, it implies that he is above party and therefore will not function as a Republican if elected.

ALL OF THIS adds up to three points:

1. Gen. Eisenhower must declare himself a Republican;

2. He must declare himself a candidate who will accept the nomination, come what may. No man can lead a party who in his mind or occupation is greater than his party;

3. He must state his platform—his domestic and foreign platform — before the convention, as no party can afford this year to buy a pig in a poke.

A political party in the United States is a state organization which selects delegates to a national convention. To many leaders, the state and congressional elections are of equal importance to the presidential election. They will not risk the former for an uncertainty in the latter if they can help it. That is why the Eisenhower candidacy evokes little enthusiasm among those who will select the delegates to Chicago.

Deterioration Loss

WASHINGTON— (AP) —We could re-arm on the twelve billion dollars annual loss from deterioration of things we use, if we could stop the deterioration. The twelve billion figure is from the Prevention of Deterioration Center of the National Academy of Sciences. The deterioration includes everything from a hundred million dollars that moths eat to five billions that rust takes.

The Once Over

Has your bookie a license? Is the football pool agent registered? Is the operator of the floating crap game, the sweepstakes lottery or the numbers racket displaying his license plates front and rear? Cockeyed as they may seem, these questions will presently be logical. Under the new tax law all persons engaged in gambling as an occupation are required to register, pay a fee to operate and pay the government 10 per cent. Since such business is illegal in most states, this calls on bookies and their agents and runners to make complete reports on operations for which they can be arrested? The bookie, lottery and pool rackets are generally condemned as ruining countless homes and depriving baby of shoes, but Uncle Sam has stepped in to take his "cut."

PHILLIPS

There is certainly no justice in making those of us in legal businesses pay through the nose while the boys behind the gambling rackets enjoy immunity, and we shed no tears for them. But the morals established, if any, are highly screwball. It is as if Uncle Sam handled an arson case by simply demanding a percentage from the fire sale. The Internal Revenue Department is asking $40,000,000 for the job of making the gamblers toe the mark (It will need that much for headache powders, foot ointment, searchlights and maps of dark alleys.)

"They're gonna make bookies and all their runners register!" exclaimed Shudda Haddim today. "This will bring a new high in aliases. That's assuming some of 'em can write. It will never work. Most of the runners I know think Tax Burden, Fair Play and Equal Justice are a three-horse parlay. They haven't given their right names and addresses to anybody in years. They don't even register in hotels, let alone tax bureaus. A lot of 'em slip out of two-dollar show bets, so you can get a fair idea how they will react to a $407,000,000 tax bill which Washington estimates as the total take."

We talked with a runner today. He has heard of the law to make him register and pay a license fee, but didn't quite believe it. "Ya mean they want me to register with my right name and address and take out a license to be in a business for which the nearest bull can throw me into the bastille?" he demanded. "Then what Mister Whiskers is saying to me is 'You are a louse and a bum but I am glad to do business with you on a ten per cent basis'."

* * *

That was so, we agreed. The law is the law, we explained.

"Regardless of track conditions and the weights?" asked the runner.

"Certainly," we replied.

"Suppose a cop grabs me taking a show bet in a delicatessen store and I pull my Federal license or registration card on him?" he asked. "If he takes me in won't he be defrauding Uncle Sam of my income taxes?"

He had us there.

TEN YEARS AGO—It was Friday, Oct. 31, 1941.

Disbanding of Co B, 166th Infantry of the Ohio National Guard, was announced by Police Chief William E. Marks, who was the company captain. Vogeler Talk Scheduled For OWU Monday

To Give Details Of Imprisonment In Red Hungary

DELAWARE, O.—The dramatic, eye-opening story of his 17 months' imprisonment behind the Iron Curtain will be told by Robert Vogeler when he appears on the Ohio Wesleyan University Lecture series at 8:15 p.m. Monday in Gray Chapel.

The American businessman, whose arrest and trial in Communist-dominated Hungary made world headlines, has scheduled a lecture tour through the nation "to make every American realize that what happened to me could happen to anyone.

An assistant vice-president of International Telephone and Telegraph company, Vogeler was serving as its European representative in Austria, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia.

Arrested

On November 18, 1949, he was summarily arrested and charged with "espionage, sabotage and conspiracy against the Hungarian government."

For three months he was held incommunicado at Budapest's dreaded secret police headquarters, Andrassy Ut. 60. As yet, he has revealed little of the powerful psychological and physical pressures brought to bear on him.

Vogeler's arrest aroused the freedom-loving world and spurred the U. S. State Department into several retaliatory steps.

Travel for Americans in Hungary was banned in December, 1949, and in the following January the Hungarian consulates in New York and Cleveland were closed.

Vogeler's trial was closely patterned after other "trials" behind the Iron Curtain. He "confessed" and was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment in solitary confinement in February, 1950.

For 17 months Lucille Vogeler, beautiful Austrian wife of the American businessman, worked unceasingly to free her husband. Her courage and perserverance stirred the sympathy of the press and public.

Prolonged negotiations between the United States and Hungarian governments finally produced terms of mutual agreement and on April 28 of this year a pale, nervous Robert Vogeler walked across the border of Hungary into Austria and to freedom.

Vogeler is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and has represented American corporations in Europe since 1938.

The Ohio Wesleyan lecture series, sponsored by the division of language and literature is open to the public.

Love Triumphant

By ADELE GARRISON

I do not think I ever have put in a more anguished sixty seconds than I did while Dicky and I walked along the corridor to the living room of our Hotel Lansfield suite.

I have become so accustomed to his affectionate foolery, his references to "Miss Fixit," "Efficiency Edna" and kindred epithets, that for years I have paid no attention to them.

But there has been something about his last speech which had given me to think.

Had there been a nuance of boredom in it? Was it possible that, as he grew older, he was beginning to resent what he was wont to call my "extra efficiency?" Would he really enjoy a more restful wife?

His teasing voice broke in on my anguished reverie.

"Has the celebrated feline acquired possession of your main organ of speech?" he asked with a grin, as he looked down at me. "I've spoken to you twice, with no answer."

"I'm sorry," I faltered. "I really didn't hear you."

His eyes were suddenly keen and attentive as they searched my face. Then he stopped, and swung me around facing him, gripping my arms tightly.

"Something's eating you," he said. "Look here, by any chance did you take seriously that hogwash I was spouting back there, trying to prove that I can be funny before breakfast?"

"I-I-didn't know," I faltered.

"Well, of all the—" he began helplessly. Then he tightened his grip on my shoulders.

"It's a lucky thing for you," he said ominously, "that you've got so much in front of you this morning. Otherwise, you'd be paddled so expertly you wouldn't be able to sit down for a week.

"One thing is certain," he went on. "I've certainly got the nitwit wife I said I'd like. Beautiful but dumb, that's you, if you gave the millionth fraction of credence to that stuff I was spilling."

He was so vehement that my dolor fled, and I found myself giggling hysterically.

At the sound of my laughter, he caught me close to him.

At the sound of my laughter, he caught me close to him.

"Listen carefully, Sweet," he told me, "and never forget again what I'm telling you. You've heard it before, several times, but I'm afraid your fabulous memory is slipping. If I had married a moron, one of those 'Is the world round, Darling?' babies, I'd have been in Reno, or in prison for murder before the first year was up. I ought not to tell you this—you're apt to have to buy a new set of hats—but I'm going to. You suit me, you fit me, you're mine, and I wouldn't trade you for anybody in the world. Got that straight?"

"Oh, yes, darling!" I caroled, and my heart was singing as well as my voice.

"Then see that you don't forget it again," he admonished, releasing me and looking over his shoulder to see if we were still alone.

"Lil and old Harry would get a great kick out of this scene," he said, "but we got out of the clinch just in time. Their door is opening."

He hurried me through the door near which we were standing. Bill and Mildred, ensconced in a corner of one of the big couches, rose with embarrassment.

"I hope you don't mind our getting up early," Bill said. "We have so little time to talk."

"Indeed we don't mind," I told him, "and you shall go back to your talk in just a minute. But I want to ask a question or two first. Is Bess Conway awake, and, most important of all, are the boys awake, and how is their packing coming on? That train won't wait, you know."

4 MILL LEVY
will cost the average taxpayer only
$1.00 to $1.25 per month

What better investment for our children . . . for the money we already have in our schools . . . than sufficient funds to provide our children with adequate teaching and the proper maintenance of our buildings.

In comparison with the $212 the other Ohio cities spend on each child in school Marion spends only $171 . . .

Is this alone not sufficient evidence that the funds from the 4 mill levy are sorely needed?

Would Be Adequate for City of 55,000

Sewage Plant To Be Rebuilt If Bond Issue Is Approved Tuesday

This is the second of two articles dealing with the $600 000 sewer bond issue which will be voted on at the Nov 6 election.

Passage of the $600 000 sewer bond issue next Tuesday could give Marion a sewage disposal plant capable of servicing a city of 55,000 population

A complete program of expansion, improvement and modernization would be carried out on the facilities to increase its purification work and efficiency.

Floyd G Browne, head of the Floyd G Browne Associates, consulting engineers who made a complete study of the Marion sewer problem for the city, said the present plant facilities would be utilized nearly 100 per cent Only structure not to be used is a small building which had been empty for several years he said

Nothing would be scrapped that is sound, Mr. Browne said Existing structures and facilities will be rebuilt

'Several of the existing structures are in bad shape physically ' Worn and damaged structures will be torn out and replaced

THE PRESENT PLANT was designed in 1922 and was said at that time to be big enough to handle a city of 40 000 population. Mr Browne said design factors used by engineers at that time have proved inadequate and the plant was never capable of those expectations The estimated life of the plant was set at 25 years He added, however that during the 27 years since its construction the plant has received no substantial improvements

The present facilities do not purify the sewage sufficiently before dumping into the Little Scioto River The treatment range at a disposal plant should range from 95 to 98 per cent removal of substances causing pollution The local plant's figure varies between 70 and 90, Councilman-at-large Newton D Cunningham, chairman of council's sanitation and sewer committee reported

THE PUMP HOUSES would be relocated, new pumps would be installed filter beds would be revamped, settling tanks would be improved and other modern equipment would be purchased for the new plant if the bond issue passes

The $600,000 will be earmarked specifically for improving and expanding the sewage disposal system and will not be available for any proposed sewer line expansion or other sewer project None will be set aside for sewer rebuilding and none for maintenance

Mr Browne pointed out that with construction of a new and more modern disposal plant, additional funds should be made available for its operation and maintenance costs If rebuilt and properly maintained the plant should be adequate for an additional 25-30 years, he said

In order to provide sufficient operating funds, City Council proposed a three-quarter mill operating levy which will also be before the voters Tuesday This levy would provide an additional $40,000 yearly to support the expanded plant At present, the plant operates on $32,000 appropriated annually from the general fund

THE PLANT IS located about two miles west of Marion on Route 95

Complete cost of the rebuilding project has been placed at $270,000 Money derived from the sale of the bonds would be added to $270 000 already on hand from a previous bond issue

Mr Browne said the need for the expansion project could be seen by the falling off of efficiency at the plant during the last five-year period

High-Ups Face Quizzing In Revenue Probe

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—House investigators brought the Department of Justice and top echelon Internal Revenue officials under their sights today in a broadening of their inquiry into federal tax service irregularities.

A big shaft of emphasis in the investigation was announced by Rep. King (D-Calif), chairman of a House ways and means subcommittee which thus far has concentrated on reports of improper practices in the offices of collectors of internal revenue.

More than a score of bureau employes have recently resigned or have been ousted or suspended. Two former collectors are under indictment. Taking note of these cases, Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn) announced that when Congress reconvenes he will offer legislation to place collectors under civil service and bar them from outside activities.

Auto, Clothes Cut; Blame Halloweeners

The slashing of automobile seat covers and clothing was reported to police yesterday and today, and police believe it to be the work of Halloweeners.

John Kessler of 524 E. Church St. reported someone had opened his car and slashed his seat covers and then scratched his windshield with a sharp knife or razor.

The car was parked at the rear of 590 Henry St at the time of the slashing, police reported. The incident was reported at 2 a. m. today. The value of the seat covers was set at $27.50.

Mrs. Alonzo D. East of 318 Hane Ave. reported that someone slashed $30 worth of clothes into uselessness while they hung on the line Monday. She said she found them when she went to take them in at 6 p. m. Monday.

The incident was reported to police yesterday.

Police said they are investigating the incidents. They believe that it was done by "not-very-funny" Halloweeners.

Friday midnight strike deadline.

Federal conciliators were expected to enter the dispute today.

San Francisco's water front also was tense with labor trouble.

CIO Marine Engineers, the men who operate the equipment which powers loading gear on 'ships, called a "stop work" meeting for 1 p m. (EST).

Tree

the tree down, that the tree was diseased.

IF GARDEN AND NATURE groups and many of the women's clubs and organizations of the city have their way, the sycamore tree at the corner will remain.

While time does not permit the calling of meetings, spokesmen expressed their opinions unofficially, but were confident they were expressing the sentiments of their organizations.

Citing the tree as a landmark, Mrs. Jay H. Maish, an active member of the Marion Garden Club, expressed herself as being against its removal. Granting that an evergreen tree is beautiful and the motive behind the supplanting of the sycamore with one that is both decorative and can be decorated at holiday time is a generous one, Mrs. Maish still believes the sycamore should remain.

Regarding the birds, in her opinion the tree might be trimmed to at least partially remove this hazard. Flowers planted at the courthouse by a unit of the Garden Club added to the beautification of the grounds this summer.

IF THE TREE is not diseased it should not be removed is the opinion expressed by Mrs. Trella Haldeman, president of the Burroughs Nature Club. The trees fit in beautifully with the age of the courthouse, in her opinion, and she pointed out that it took years to attain their age and g r o w t h. She believes that the terrific pruning they underwent some time ago proves they are healthy.

The trees are a part of Marion, Mrs. Walter E. Hane, president of the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs said. Since the trees are a part of Marion's history she believes they should be preserved, adding that they also provide a spot of greenery in the city's business section.

"MAYBE IT IS just sentiment on my part, but I should not like to see the tree removed," Miss Irene Reynolds, president of the Marion Altrusa Club stated. Keeping the trees trimmed might discourage the birds t h a t roost in them, she added.

Mrs. William Barnhouse, president of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs is not in favor of removing the tree. Explaining she is not voicing the opinion of the club, she believes the trees add to the downtown scenery a n d t h e courthouse grounds. The club is responsible for the planting of shrubbery on the grounds.

Mrs. J. L. Rinnert, president of the City Council P.-T.A. expressed the opinion that if the trees were a hazard, they should come down, but added she would hate to see them removed.

Taft Seeks Support In Solid South

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 31—(AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft revived the Democrats' own ancient states' rights battlecry last night as he opened a campaign to widen the breach in the solid South and gain conservative Democratic support.

"We must put on an all-out campaign in all southern states in behalf of the Republican nominee," he said in his first Dixie invasion as an avowed candidate for the GOP nomination.

He spoke at a Republican rally in the center of strongly Republican east Tennessee, but he drew some Democrats to a $25-a-plate GOP dinner.

Mother Pleads For Son's Life

COLUMBUS, Oct. 31—(AP)—Mrs. George Killinger made a dramatic plea yesterday for the life of her 18-year-old son, sentenced to death for the murder of a Medina farmer.

"On, please, please! Don't let Jerry die! He's only a boy—he didn't know!" She sobbed before the State Pardon and Parole Commission.

Jerry Killinger was convicted of murdering 23-year-old Harold Mast on Oct 5, 1950 He is scheduled to die Nov. 16 in the electric chair.

Killinger testified at his trial he was persuaded to commit the murder by Max Amerman, 28, who wanted to woo the victim's 24-year-old Norwegian war bride, Randi Mast.

Amerman also was convicted of murder and was sentenced to death. The Pardon and Parole Commission held a clemency hearing for Amerman earlier yesterday. He is scheduled to die Nov. 15 a day before Killinger.

Only Gov. Frank J. Lausche can grant clemency.

Mrs. Killinger, of Medina, held back her emotions through two hours of the hearing before she was asked to speak. But broke down when she reached the commission's table. After her few desperate sentences she nearly fell. Her husband and several attorneys supported her.

"Oh, I'm sorry, I want to get out of here," she said as she was taken from the room.

forms, and the police doubted there would be any.

In Cincinnati, the office was receiving some cautiously worded calls, most of them from persons wondering whether registering would "put them on the spot."

In Matthews' view, the trouble with the new tax is that it would cut too deeply into revenues which he considers heavily tapped already.

He has complained of expenses in print before but has never said he would close down.

"This business has got everyone out here who writes and plays games sick, just sick," he said.

Numbers writers, he continued, now receive 25 per cent of the gross bets, plus a five per cent tip on winning bets.

"On top of that 25 per cent," he continued, "the game cannot stand a 10 per cent take of the gross. These writers haven't got a dime. Where does anybody think they are going to get that $50 to pay for that (gambling occupation) stamp?

"I don't have any of the papers (the tax forms) and I don't want any of them."

Lucrative Racket

In such Ohio Industrialized communities as Warren, Youngstown and Cleveland, the numbers game has been easily the most lucrative racket since bootlegging.

Players place bets on a number, and the lucky figure pays off in heavy odds.

later today after a wedding breakfast at the hotel.

Miss Davies was dressed in sports clothing. Brown was wearing a blue suit.

Only yesterday it was announced that Miss Davies, longtime friend of the late publisher William Randolph Hearst, had settled with the Hearst Corp. all matters pertaining to control of his estate.

She owned the home in which he died last August.

The announcement said she "has relinquished all rights she may have to act as voting trustee for the stock of the Hearst Corp."

The couple obtained a license shortly after they arrived at this desert gambling resort and reportedly asked that the wedding be kept a secret.

Religion

prelude by Mrs. Cecil W. Davis, was singing of "America" by the audience. Rev. Faulkner gave invocation.

The Marion Serenaders, men's choral group, sang "The Lord Is My Light," as an a cappella number, and "O Holy Lord," with organ, directed by L. G. Jones. At the close, benediction was spoken by Rev. Ashley Booth of Central Christian Church, president of the Marion County Ministerial Association.

In presenting the award, Mr Taft cited the united efforts of local lay members of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths as "an example to all of us of cooperation in behalf of the spiritual life of the community.

Accomplishments of the local program which earned Marion the national award were summed up as its unity of cooperation a m o n g participating religious groups, the concentration of publicity which served to heighten community consciousness of the values of religion, and the extensive results in increased church attendance and support.

"The scope of the local program," he concluded, presented an opportunity and a challenge to Marion's lay manpower and womanpower to put the best efforts of many to work on behalf of the community's religious institutions This initial interest has continued to be reflected in increased participation by men and women in the affairs of their churches."

Dr. Neutzel won high praise from both Mr. Taft and from his fellow workers in the campaign for his "tireless efforts as the driving power back of the local program.'

Credit Given

Giving credit in turn to his co-chairman and committee members, Dr. Neutzel said they "gave generously in time and labor in order to make the campaign produce lasting benefits for the moral and spiritual health of Marion. He commented f u r t h e r, everyone worked hard, in the belief that this united effort was a vital step in the direction of a greater unity among the three faiths in our community. Working together to increase interest in religion, we achieved a united front for God in Marion.'

Basis on which Marion's work in the movement was judged by the national committee included the points of "careful planning and execution of plans, originality, increase in worship attendance and lay activities reported by the churches, data and records for appraisal carefully kept, extensive strengthening of interfaith relationships, sponsorship by local service clubs and civic and religious groups, enlisting of civic leaders and prominent citizens in the work, and good use of the national materials and suggestions in local application."

Rev. Faulkner, terming the enthusiastic response in launching the movement here a veritable "atomic chain reaction," gave a history of the initial campaign. He traced its source to receipt of information on the national movement by Rev. L. Harrison Ludwig of Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, president of the Marion County Council of Churches. It was taken to the evangelism committee of the Marion County Ministerial Association, support of Kiwanis Club was enlisted through Dr. Nuetzel, chairman of the Religious Aims Committee of the club, and other service clubs, Junior Chamber of Commerce, labor unions, farm organizations, and representatives of Catholic and Jewish groups were reached and took interest in the movement. Marion County Council of Church Women members took the responsibility of calling each home in the community in the interest of church attendance and support.

Plans of the 1951 campaign for R.I.A.L. month, November, were announced by Dr. J. B Holloway, co-chairman with Dr. Nuetzel this year, and pastor of Trinity Church. The theme is "Take Someone to Church This Week, You'll Both Be Richer for It."

The local program is conducted as part of the annual, non-sectarian movement which is dedicated to strengthening the place of religion in personal and community life It is organized to provide extensive national publicity throughout each November in an effort to focus attention on the importance of religious institutions as the foundation of American life, and urge everyone to attend and support "the church or synagogue of his choice." The movement is supported by 22 national religious bodies. Charles E Wilson, director of defense mobilization, is general chairman.

Preceding the meeting at the church, a dinner was held in the Presidential Suite of Hotel Harding for Mr. Taft, the local R.I.A.L. officers, and committee members and guests. During the award presentation, recordings were taken for radio transcription later over Station WMRN, and a transcription will be broadcast in the near future over Station WRFD at Worthington.

Army Court Weighs Case Against Officer

TOLEDO, O., Oct 31—(AP)—An 11-member general court martial today receives the case against Col Shirley W. McIlwain, deposed commanding officer of the Rossford Ordnance Depot.

Even if he is found guilty, he would not be sentenced right away Further evidence may then be heard and his Army record considered. If still found guilty, he could appeal to higher authority.

The prosecution accused McIlwain of purchasing two new Oldsmobiles and a Cadillac through the Hertzfelt-Oldsmobile, Inc of Toledo, at extremely heavy discounts. The prosecution says this was "dishonest."

When he took the stand yesterday, the colonel testified that while he was commanding officer at Rossford he managed to buy, by trading in his old cars, five new Oldsmobiles and a 1950 Cadillac in succession with a cash outlay of $25.

Open Defense In Columbus Murder Trial

COLUMBUS, Oct. 31—(AP)—Defense attorney Paul Herbert failed yesterday to get a directed verdict of innocent or dismissal of the second-degree murder charges against George Phillips, 28.

He made his motion after Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett rested the state's case against the Columbus insurance salesman who is charged with the slaying of Mrs. Ruth Alter, a 32-year-old Columbus housewife, last April 25.

"The court feels that on the evidence a jury question has been presented," Judge Gessaman said in overruling Herbert's motion

Herbert summoned seven witnesses for today, the eighth day of the trial. They include two Ohio State University pathologists, who performed the autopsy on Mrs. Alter's body.

Herbert also called two men he mentioned during cross-examination of James Stonerock, a bakery truck driver who testified for the prosecution. Stonebrook denied telling the two men he was interested in a $1,500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the murderer.

QUEER HUMOR

COLUMBUS, Oct. 31—(AP)—Someone's sense of humor sent a 28-year-old Columbus mother into a coma today.

The humorist telephoned the woman her husband had been killed in Korea The woman, at home with her six-year-old daughter, went into shock The Fire Department emergency squad and her physician have been unable to bring the woman to. A check later proved the call a fake.

Gamblers

tax on their gross take. That means ten per cent, win or lose, of all money bet with them.

Penalties range up to a year in prison, plus a $10,000 fine.

A Washington lawyer announced yesterday he had clients —he wasn't saying who — who want to test the first requirements against the Constitution

Attorney Myron Ehrlich told a reporter he would contend that the Constitution does not permit a law that would require a taxpayer to disclose information which might incriminate him.

Registration as a gambler, and posting of a gambler's stamp would in most states do just that. The registration lists become public, so police need only get the list and go pick up confessed gamblers.

That second provision was almost as hurtful, according to members of the gaming profession who would talk at all yesterday.

Would Lose on Bets

The gamblers said their profit on a bet was usually seven or eight percent of the amount wagered As the tax is not on profit, but the total wager, that would mean a loss of two to three per cent, if you take the gamblers' profit figures as solid truth.

The gambler is required by law to keep books showing all his profit and loss, and the application which he makes for the license is public property

The law goes into effect Thursday but the gamblers have until Dec. 1 in which to file an application for a license.

So far no one has filed for a "gambling license" in Marion, Deputy Collector John Sells reported today.

The fate of Marion's one bookie joint, the City Limits Restaurant remains unknown. Charles D. England, operator of the horse gambling establishment, was not available for comment.

November Penalty

Penalty for not applying for a "gambling license" during the month of November if one is engaged in gambling is a fine of not less than $1,000 and not more than $5,000.

The Marion applications, if any are forthcoming, are to be on file at the Columbus office of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and will be public.

This will make it easy for law enforcement officers in Marion to find out who the gamblers are.

Some forms of gambling are exempt from the tax.

The law says wagering games are exempt if the wagers are placed, the winners are determined, and the distribution of property made in the presence of those making the wager in the game.

This means the old fashioned "home type" of poker game will be exempted from the tax

Also exempted will be charitable organizations and parimutuel betting Such organizations will neither have to make application or pay the tax.

Will Cooperate But Not Join Pact, Tito Says

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 31—(AP)—Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia declared today he is willing to cooperate with — but not to join—the Atlantic Pact, and said the West could count on him as a friend in the event of World War III.

Tito met with 125 foreign and local newspapermen in a four hour news conference, his largest and longest since becoming chief of state, and answered a barrage of questions.

These were some of his answers:

He hopes for better relations soon with Italy and Greece.

He supports the rearmament of western Germany.

He warned repeatedly that there is danger of war, but said the people should "not despair" of preventing it.

What? No Jack-O'-Lanterns? Blame It on Pumpkin Shortage

Halloween without jack-o'-lanterns is as difficult to imagine as Christmas without trees and tinsel. However, if the current scarcity of pumpkins continues, in a few years only witches and black cats will remain as symbols of the Oct. 31 holiday.

The reason for the scarcity is that farmers rarely plant pumpkin seeds in their corn fields these days because modern methods of cultivation interfere with the growth of the vines.

Arthur Smith, agriculture extension agent, expressed the opinion that farmers are given no incentive to raise and market pumpkins as there is no demand for them except at this particular time of year.

Marion markets reported an early sellout on the pumpkins they carried.

A Marion woman who raises pumpkins on an acreage east of town and gives them to children and organizations for use as jack-o'-lanterns declared that this has been a poor year for growing pumpkins because of the dry weather during July and August.

Her pumpkins this year were "flat-sided" and averaged only 10 to 15 pounds, while last year many of them weighed 50 or 60 pounds and two of them weighed 90 pounds apiece.

She pointed out that in early days, pumpkins were grown by farmers to feed to livestock during the winter, as they kept well and retained their food value until spring. In those days, a farmer could expect about 1,000 pumpkins from 30 acres, since the growth of pumpkins was not interrupted by use of machinery in the fields. Cultivators were pulled by teams of horses until the corn was knee-high to the animals, and then cultivation was performed by hand.

The large pumpkins which make the best "punkin heads" are called "cow pumpkins" or "field pumpkins," while the smaller "pie pumpkins" are particularly good for cooking purposes.

Late Pledges Boost Chest Contributions

Total Reaches $90,390; More Donations Expected

Additional pledges received since the close of the Marion County Red Feather Community Chest campaign have increased the receipts to $90,390 60, it was reported at Chest headquarters today. The campaign closed last Thursday with $89,587 88 reported in pledges and cash subscriptions. The goal is $97,764, the amount needed to carry on the work of the Marion Community Foundation.

Reports of workers in the county are expected to be completed this week, and these, together with other outstanding pledges anticipated by the campaign committee, are expected to further increase the fund.

There still are a number of pledges waiting to be picked up by workers in several of the campaign divisions, campaign headquarters reported. Inquiries are being received at the Community Foundation headquarters asking if the campaign is still open. These are from persons who were out of the city or not at home when the workers called.

An additional contribution was made to the clubs and organizations division yesterday, a group that topped its quota this year.

Contributions are still being received and persons who have not yet been contacted and wish to make a contribution are asked to call the Community Foundation headquarters, 2-1702, or leave their gift at the headquarters, 142½ East Center St.

UPPER SANDUSKY — Jerry Roszman, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roszman of near Upper Sandusky, narrowly escaped serious injury at the Roszman farm while he and his father were picking up corn in a field.

The father and his son were walking beside the tractor while it was moving slowly down field when the boy fell under the rear wheel of the machine. The tractor passed over his left arm and leg and the left side of his body.

X-rays taken at Wyandot Memorial Hospital revealed no bones were broken, although portions of the body were badly bruised.

New Levy Will Help Pay for Repairs

Maintenance Needed To Protect Schools

This is one of a series of articles explaining the need for passage at the Nov 6 general election of the four-mill tax levy for city school operating expenses. The articles were prepared by a Citizens Committee formed to promote passage of the levy.

THE best protection for the taxpayer's investment in public school buildings is the proper maintenance of the school plant. The custodial and maintenance force of the Marion City Schools has done an excellent job over the years in keeping our buildings clean and pleasant for children. All buildings that are to be continued as permanent school centers have modern heating and lighting. Interior painting is done periodically, though not as frequently as desirable. Roofs need constant attention and considerable of the meager maintenance money has gone for roof repair.

The more expensive upkeep of buildings, however, has had to be neglected. Brick walls in several buildings, notably Oakland and Mark Street elementary schools, badly need repointing. Stokers, common in modern school buildings, are to be found in only two of our 15 schools. Outside painting of buildings has been so infrequent that in several buildings window frames must be replaced. With new buildings now being constructed it is doubly important that proper maintenance be provided to assure maximum life for these structures.

THE MARION CITY School District spends a larger portion of its income dollar on instruction than any other school system in Ohio. It follows that it has less of its school dollar for operation and maintenance than other school systems. The life of many of our school buildings can be extended for long years by proper repair and maintenance now. A portion of the proceeds of the four mill levy will be used for this purpose.

Some of the old school furniture has outlived its usefulness. Gradually it must be replaced by modern school equipment. Some third grade children have first grade seats because third grade furniture is not available for them. As the enrollment increases additional seating must be purchased. The cost of merely seating a child in a classroom today is about $25. It should be noted that furniture in our schools, is repaired and refinished as long as it is usable. The Marion school system has been most conservative over the years in modernizing its classrooms. Voters are assured that they get value received for every dollar expended for school equipment.

TEXTBOOKS USED BY our children are valued at more than $40,000. The Board of Education is required by state law to buy all such books. Many classrooms are short of needed maps, globes, and science equipment. The Harding High School science department right now, for example, is in need of microscopes because of the increased enrollment in science classes. It should be noted that all playground equipment, motion picture projectors used in classroom instruction, and even many supplementary books, are purchased by Parent-Teacher Associations and from funds raised by student effort. With the sharp increase in prices of classroom supplies in the past few years, schools have been forced to do without many things needed by them for the best instruction of children.

In our next article we should like to discuss the salary situation of school employes.

Admits Putting Arsenic In Wife's Medicine

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31—(AP)—A furnace tender who said his sick wife nagged him has admitted poisoning her by putting arsenic in her medicine, police reported today.

Homicide detective David E. Kerr said Marvin Lucear, 36, confessed killing his wife, Ocie Mae, 37, by slipping rat powder into a bottle of medicine she was taking.

"She was tired and sleeping all the time and having pain in her side," he told Kerr. "I had spent hundreds of dollars on doctoring and hundreds before that to see why we couldn't have any children."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

NEW YORK

JUST the moment before the tall, white-haired leader walked into the noisy sailors' hall with a simple native dignity which hushed the crowd, the crew-sweatered, open-jacketed seafarers were heatedly debating how to handle shipmates who get high on rye, pull switchblades and guns on the others, abandon and endanger a ship, or go off on a narcotics binge.

A few moments after their national leader, Philip Murray slightly wan after his dangerous illness finished speaking to the National Maritime Union convention, some of the hardened men of the open seas openly wept.

Victor Riesel

For this man from the coal dust of Pittsburgh was their own eloquent elder statesman who had helped their seagoing union up their wages from $25 and $50 a month to the $262 package they have today on the great luxury liners.

They grinned when he jested with them over their demands for washing machines and coffee percolators. There were tears on the wind-burned faces when he told them every union must worship human dignity, and labor's role was simple—to put pictures on their walls, carpets on their floors, music in their homes wherever they may be . . ."

Phil Murray also had things to say of interest to the people far beyond the halls of the sailors eighth convention—a convention incidentally, of the world's highest paid and best-cared-for seamen. He had driven in from Pittsburgh the night before and was to see Joe Louis fight that evening—and, in between, he had lots of time to disclose some vital plans, it seemed to me.

FIRST IN HIS heart, of course, is his fight against the steel industry next month. He disclosed that his union of steel workers now was 1,250,000 strong—the world's biggest labor organization. He intimated that unless there was a curb on industrial profits, he would smash all wage controls and ignore the "lopsided" Defense Production Act which attempted to control wages.

Then, when Congress reconvenes, he and CIO will lead the fight to control all profits. There was no subtlety in this preview of things he will say at the CIO convention here next week. He charged American business with "raping the American public."

THERE WAS NO doubt that Phil Murray was warming up his old coal digger jargon for the blasts on big steel. There also was no doubt that he and his aides would be quietly probing for a soft spot among the steel-making giants whose headquarters are downtown in this city's financial district. Phil Murray hits the picket lines only when he must.

As the sailors cheered him he hinted at new, coast-to-coast CIO unionizing drives when, in that Scottish-burr which accents his words when angry, he shouted:

"The CIO has not scratched the surface of its possibilities in the U. S."

He followed this by revealing that in 1949 "when we thought less of members than of menace to our country" and the CIO expelled the left wing unions it dropped 700,000 to 800,000 ex-members. Never before had this figure of left wing strength been disclosed.

THEN, IT SEEMED to this observer he nominated a successor to himself when the day came for a sturdier body to direct CIO's machine—if not in the actual titular leadership as president of CIO, at least as its operational chief. He spoke of the National Maritime Union leader, Joseph Curran, as I've never heard him, in 15 years, speak of another CIO leader.

"I've come to have a very wholesome regard for Big Joe—big in stature, big in mind and an outstanding leader of CIO. I have come to have considerable reliance on his advice while we underwent the rigors of our everyday tribulations."

There was more. This obviously was no idle meaningless boost. If any man had received the accolade of leadership it was the big balding, pug-nosed sailor who appeared to personify CIO's toughness.

PHILIP MURRAY had some words for the AFL leadership too.

"They can go to hell as far as I'm concerned," he said. Then he looked down at our press table.

"Don't misquote me," he added. "They can go to hell if their attitude is that they won't talk to us, just issue a virtual ultimatum that we must have organic unity. I wish the AFL would study these problems before they provoke controversy.

"I have been across this country. We have millions of dollars in government bonds, real estate, some 50 or 60 or maybe 100 newspapers. We have hundreds of people working in the field who have all sorts of benefits, pensions and insurance policies.

"I will fight to protect them (in any merger with the AFL). Every human being who works for CIO is entitled to protection. You can't just merge with the AFL by passing a motion."

Then he left the sailors to their own problems. What else this leader of 6,000,000 militants had to say would have to wait for the CIO convention itself.

Talk on Mail Service Heard By Rotarians

Russell C. Alexander, Postal Inspector, Speaks to Club

"Handling of the mails is the world's largest business," Russell C. Alexander, United States postal inspector of the Marion district said in addressing members of the Marion Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon meeting held at Hotel Harding yesterday. Mr. Alexander who has been in charge of the Marion district since 1944 talked on the origin and development of postal service in the United States.

He traced the important steps in the development of the service from its beginning in 1639 through the time when Benjamin Franklin became first post-master general, up until 1951. He also gave dates on which provisions were made for conveying letters by registered mail, railway, special delivery and air mail.

Mr. Alexander had on hand a vast amount of statistics on the various postal departments, the volume of mail handled, the money spent in different cities and the amount of revenue used over the years. In 1790 the amount of revenue was $38,000 while in 1950 it was over one billion dollars. There was a post deficit in 1950 and Mr. Alexander believes that this problem can be solved only by an increase in postal rates.

He ended his talk by explaining the system of pipes and subways which carry one-fourth of New York City's mail.

In answer to a question Mr. Alexander stated that Marion's present postoffice building is too small but that he could give no information on when a new one would be built.

Visiting Rotarians at this meeting were J. L. Patterson of Cardington, John T. Shook of Mansfield, and Dr. Ernest W. Weiss vice president of the Nanchang China Rotary Club. Other guests were George Cunnan of Cleveland, A. Tanzig of Chisholm, Minn., Stanley H. Morse of Adison, Mich., and Wayne H. Kuhn of Marion.

Beverlee Friedel was student reporter from the Harding Journalism classes.

U. S. Traffic Deaths Near Million Mark

CHICAGO, Oct. 31—(AP)—Traffic deaths on the nation's highways are mounting as expected, toward the one million mark, the National Safety Council said today.

The council announced the total number of deaths for the first nine months of this year—26,630—which pushed the grand total since the advent of the automobile "well past 990,000."

That leaves less than 10,000 to go before the millionth traffic death is recorded. The council said its earlier estimate that the millionth fatality would occur during the third week of December was unchanged by the latest figures.

September alone accounted for 3,650 persons killed in traffic accidents.

The nine-month total of 26,630 was eight per cent higher than for the same period in 1950.

"The millionth death is approaching right on schedule," Ned H. Dearborn, safety council president, said.

"All that remains is the shame of a civilized nation which can accept this terrible blight of death, injury and suffering without any widespread effort to prevent it."

Leap Year Lobby

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK

THE country may face something new in the way of pressure politics in 1952—a leap year lobby.

Labor is organized, farmers are organized, manufacturers are organized, dog owners are organized. They banded together long ago to get what they want out of government.

But spinsters? So far they have gone it alone.

Next year, however, is election year. It is also the one-year-in-four when old maids and bachelor girls traditionally can openly put a half-nelson on the man of their choice and lead him to the altar.

Hal Boyle

And it seems like a good time for the lovelorn lasses to get wise and organize—to create a solid voting bloc and tell each political party:

"Never mind all that usual fol-de-rol about equal rights for the bleaker sex. How about putting a plank in your platform pledging government dowries for doughless dames?"

THERE ARE MILLIONS of husband-seeking ladies in America of voting age. And it will take a mighty high-principled advocate of economy in government to stand up against them if they make a feminine pass en masse for a handful of the gold buried at Fort Knox.

A number of girls hold the belief that dollars make sense when it comes to snaring a wary male.

"I got a guy I could marry today if I could buy him the car he wants and make a down payment on a decent house," said one. "But all my spare change has been going into paying income tax. Why shouldn't Uncle Sam give us a dowry as a kind of tax rebate, like some corporations get, payable right after the wedding ceremony? The government would get it all back later—in more taxes."

AND ANOTHER SAID: "If Congress doesn't give me some kind of allowance to finance me I'll surely die an old maid. All men seem to want from a girl these days is money, money, and more money. I've been buying my trousseau for years, and you know what I keep it in? A cigar box."

A widow I questioned said she thought widows ought to be given a double dowry—"just to make things fairer."

My old friend George Durst, a reader from Jamaica, N. Y., is already plumping for a national matrimonial week during leap year.

"They have all kinds of special weeks now from candy week to macaroni week," he wrote, "and you don't love your mother unless you buy her an ostrich during national ostrich week.

"A national matrimonial week might convince millions of well-to-do unmarried women it is more logical to own a husband than a paid income tax receipt."

DURST FEELS THE GOVERNMENT'S recent grant of $12,000 to a sociologist to study love and marriage in America is only a drop in the bucket. He favors the creation of "a federal matrimonial bureau or a department of romance' to bring single guys and girls together. He suggests it could be done by printing a federal matrimonial bulletin, listing the eligibles.

The U. S. Printing Office already publishes 1,001 varieties of leaflets ranging from how to fly snowballs to how to dance like a penguin with ants in his tux.

Those are a few signs of the pre-leap year groundswell in the problems of love and matrimony across the land. It looks like there'll be something new in '52.

Royal Reception

By Inez Robb

WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE nation's capital is the only segment of the United States that England's future queen is going to see at first hand.

But John Q. Citizen can read back today and feel pretty certain that Princess Elizabeth, who arrives here this afternoon, will carry away a mighty nice impression of us, derived from Washington and its environs.

Washington in its autumn dress is something to see. The trees are every shade of green, gold and scarlet. And the princess is certain to ride down wide, tree shaded avenues where the overlapping branches now form a canopy of pure gold.

Inez Robb

No amount of bunting could decorate the city as gaily as nature already has done for free. It seems a pity the princess will have so little time really to see our capital.

A quick tour of Arlington and Mount Vernon are mandatory for all VIPs visiting Washington, and the princess and the Duke of Edinburgh will make this pilgrimage tomorrow morning.

But no place on the schedule of events planned for the future queen is there mention of a visit to the Lincoln Memorial, the most beautiful and moving memorial in Washington. It can only be hoped that President Truman will see to it that the royal couple get a chance to visit it both by day and by night.

DURING WORLD WAR II, even Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt found time to visit it by night, to draw strength and inspiration from it. Surely the powers that be can steal enough time from her tightpacked schedule to show the princess the most inspiring memorial in the United States.

Of necessity, the princess will miss the best show in Washington since Congress is in recess, but she will get a glimpse of the interior of the Capitol, more or less as an after-thought. Just before Elizabeth and Philip board the plane that is to carry them back to Canada Friday afternoon, they will go to the Capitol. It is expected that vice president Barkley will be on hand to greet them.

This visit to the Capitol is not on the "official" program issued by the White House, but has been added to it at the request of the princess who nicely enough, has asked to go to the Library of Congress that same morning for a look at the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the copy of Magna Carta stashed there for safekeeping.

A visit to the Supreme Court, at the princess's request, has also been added to the Friday agenda, as well as a visit to Washington Cathedral.

There will be no official parade through Washington for the princess as for her parents in 1939 when hundreds of thousands of persons lined the streets for a glimpse of their majesties.

Natives who get a glimpse of the pretty princess will have to get it on the run.

The arrival of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip is the big news in Washington today with the meeting of the Democratic national committee merely a runner-up. The committee is in session to choose a new national chairman to succeed William M. Boyle, another of the valiant party stalwarts fallen on the REC field of battle.

The committee is under the gun to choose a chairman by 5:30 p.m. (EST) today, at which hour Mr. Boyle has already announced that he will entertain 200 of the faithful at a cocktail party in honor of his successor, whoever he be.

However at that hour, most of Washington will be at the Statler Hotel, battling to get into the press reception for the princess and her husband.

The American College of Osteopathic Surgeons is also holding its national convention at the Statler at the moment, so there will be ample doctors in the house if anyone is trampled in the rush.

Cranberry Rice Cream Is a Dessert Delight

SUGAR and rice and everything nice—that's what this dessert is made of. And surprises, that's what cranberry rice cream is made of, too. It will be an unexpected pleasure for your guests to eat and just as much for you to prepare—it has the happy faculty of requiring day-before preparation so that you can have plenty of time to enjoy yourself, too. Topped with hot cranberry and brown sugar sauce, it's a colorful suggestion that'll brighten those dreary November days ahead.

CRANBERRY RICE CREAM

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup milk
¾ cup cooked rice
1 T sugar
¼ t salt
1 t vanilla
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 lb. can whole cranberry sauce
¼ cup brown sugar

Place gelatin in custard cup. Add cold water and let stand 2 minutes. Place custard cup in pan of boiling water until gelatin dissolves. Add to cold milk. Add rice, sugar, salt and vanilla and chill until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped cream. Spoon into sherbets—or pour into large mold—and chill until firm. When ready to serve, heat cranberry sauce with brown sugar until piping hot. When serving let guests ladle hot cranberry sauce over rice cream. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Young People Attend Junior Hi-Y Party

Approximately 250 young people from Hi-Y and Y-Teen organizations of the Marion schools attended a party sponsored by the Junior H-Y boys at the YMCA Thursday night. The five Junior Hi-Y's were represented, including members from Vernon Junior High School seventh grade, Vernon eighth grade, Vernon ninth grade, and Edison Junior High School and State Street Junior High School groups. Dwight Haas welcomed the visiting Y-Teen Clubs.

Miss Helen May from Vernon, a faculty advisor, conducted "mixer" games, Miss Evelyn Hipsher of State Street led group singing and Miss Jane George of State Street played the piano. Donald Baggs of Vernon took admissions, and Jim Buck was in charge of refreshments. Dancing from 7:30 until 10 was the main recreational attraction of the event.

Radio and Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Picture a Song of Sixpence

Obviously a lot of profound thinking is being done these days on the picturization of the popular song. If you know what I mean and I doubt it There was a time when a girl could stand in front of a curtain, suitably spotlighted in amber, and sing about the terrible agonies of love and why did it have to happen to her and especially why did that particular man have to happen to her and whatever became of him anyhow A simple rendition of those plaints in something approximating a voice used to fulfill our inner needs.

John Crosby

But not any more Not since television. Now, they make a three act play out of it— girl meets boy, girl gets boy girl loses leaping about in some sort of symbolic representation of her sexual frustration Then they superimpose the singer's face over this production orgy and, by the time it s all over you're emotionally tuckered, which isn't the idea of a popular song exactly. Most popular songs can t stand all this over-elaboration, a great many lyrics can't stand any sort of scrutiny at all, much less all this —I can't think of a better word —picturization

ONCE ON "The Hit Parade", which I must admit is a terribly elaborate and ingenious operation, they were picturizing How High The Moon" and, bless my soul, if they didn't transport all of us right up to that orb Out from behind the stalactites and the stalagmites leapt all those ballet dancers dressed in moon costumes (Of course you know what a moon costume is, junior or you've been neglecting your "Space Cadet" lessons) This was a terrible thing to do to the songwriters For years, the moon has been the songwriter's best friend invariably providing comfort, solace and a fine rhyme for June But the moon shouldn't be inspected too closely as was done here. It really isn't a very pretty place After this terrible expose of its true nature, I don't know how any songwriters can turn to it as a symbol of romance for a long time to come.

One of the most popular props for the picturization of a song is that old friend of the playwrights —the telephone The girl—let us say —is saying or rather, singing come back I love you I didn t mean it I'm sorry—into the phone If you've got a lot of production money to spend, you can switch to camera two and show a man on the other end, listening and registering—at the regular AFRA scale rates—happiness If you want to make a real big thing out of it, you can follow the transmission of the call through the switchboards of the telephone company which affords an opportunity to show a lot of telephone girls listening in (they re not supposed to do that but it s all right on television) and also registering—at the regular AFRA rates—happiness You think that's silly, do you? Well, it's been done many times on television

IN FACT the telephone has been sung into by so many singers on television—everyone from Dinah Shore to Bert Parks—that I do nothing but sing into it myself these days which is a fine way to keep your friends at a proper d stance Your really hep so ig writer, aware of the telephone's influence on his curious craft, will throw a line into his lyric about the phone 'Snanghai," for example (I m just around the corner in a phone booth') In other words your up-to-date songwriter is learning to insert stage directions in his lyrics without losing the beat. Incidentally, before we get too far away from "Sna ghai" —this song sounds to me like a popular revulsion against all those people who, a few years ago, took a slow boat to China. Well, they re all back Or rather, they never got off in the first place

The ultimate in song picturization is the Paul Dixon show on ABC-TV where they've eliminated the singers altogether On this show a pretty girl named Dottie Mack, who has more singing voices than a chameleon has colors, goes through the motions of singing in appropriate settings and with appropriate gestures while a recording made by Dinah Shore, or Lena Horne or Margaret Whiting is played off-camera Mr Dixon handles all the male roles—Bing Crosby, Frankie Laine, anybody—and the two of them can tear off a duet in any combination of voices with terrifying versatility

Eventually, I expect the songs will be eliminated along with the singers and we'll get just a series of pretty moving pictures to the accompaniment of a cadenced beat you can tap your feet to As any fool knows, a popular song is meant to be looked at, not listened to.

BACK IN LIMELIGHT. This is the latest portrait study of dapper Anthony Eden, who at 54 ranks as one of Britain's elder statesmen—and who is expected to be the Conservative Party s choice for Foreign Secretary in the new Churchill administration

N.Y. Stock Quotations

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(UP)—Stocks moved lower at the opening today in moderately active dealings.

The decline again was attributed to poor earnings reports. U.S. Steel reported after the market closed yesterday that its earnings were cut sharply because of higher costs and taxes.

All departments joined in the sell-off. Losses were generally in the fractional zone with a few issues showing much wider declines.

Oils, rails, steels and chemicals showed the widest losses. In the steel group, Bethlehem Steel dipped ⅞ to 41¼ on a block of 1,500 shares. U.S. Steel opened unchanged 41⅛ on a block of 2,500 shares.

Santa Fe, yesterday's weak spot in the carriers fell a point to 68¾ on a block of 1,000 shares. Others in this group eased.

Kern County Land slipped a point to 47 in the oils. Amerada Petroleum countered the trend with a gain of a point to 159.

American Cyanamid dropped 2⅛ points to 105¾ in chemicals. Dow Chemical at 98¾ was off 1¾ on a block of 1,200 shares.

Here's why: Important flavor elements escape from coffee in ordinary cans. Even when can is sealed, freshness is lost!

In pressure packed cans positive pressure brings you coffee far fresher—far richer in important flavor elements!

You hear the difference—a louder S-s-s-s of flavor-saving pressure as the can opens! You smell the difference—a richer aroma of fresh, fresh coffee! Finally, you taste that extra-lively, wide-awake flavor and you say, "That's my coffee!" Try it today!

All the flavor your cup can hold!

Better Loan-getter Than Attlee

Churchill Election May Prove Costly To U. S.

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK Oct 31—(AP)—American businessmen got a psychological shot in the arm from the Churchill election But many of them say "Churchill will be more expensive to us than Attlee."

The United States is likely to be called upon soon to give more aid—both in money and materials—to England.

And among the 2,000 businessmen attending the convention sponsored here by the National Foreign Trade Council there is a widely held belief that Congress will be willing to grant it They argue that Congress, which was often reluctant to aid Socialist England, will be willing to help Conservative England

The psychological lift from the election may also halt the flight from the pound sterling which in the last few months has fed on rumors that the pound might be devalued again Some of the bankers exporters importers shippers and industrialists attending the convention believe that a Labor victory would have been followed by devaluation but that Churchill is less likely to cheapen the pound—at least not right away.

FEW OF THE FOREIGN traders meeting here believe that there will be any improvement soon in trade relations with the British commonwealth On the contrary they think that Churchill is more likely to tighten the curbs on imports into England from dollar areas

They also look for him to strengthen the preferential empire tariffs by which England and the British commonwealth nations give each other cut rates to encourage their own trade and discourage trade with the United States and others outside the sterling area

As to convertibility—that is the freeing of the pound sterling from exchange restrictions so that Americans can change dollars pounds to dollars or from dollars to pounds at will—financial circles here think that also is only a future hope The Conservatives may want to work toward it but won't be able to achieve it for a couple of years perhaps

THESE VIEWS ARE BASED on Britain's growing economic crisis—which even the psychological lift of the defeat of socialism, if only by a precarious margin, cannot entirely offset

England's gold and dollar reserves fell $598 million during July August and September That was because the cost of the raw materials Britain had to import outran the price she got for the goods she exported This trade deficit is likely to continue for some time financial circles here believe Some fear that the British reserves will continue to fall by about the same rate for the rest of the year

* * *

CHURCHILL WILL HAVE some weapons for fighting this American business men point out One is the $1 billion in American securities which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had been holding as security for a 1941 loan to Britain This loan was repaid in full this month and the securities released to the British

A second help may lie in the possibility that the British will skip payment in December of the interest due the U S Treasury on the 1946 loan of $3 ¾ billion

A third help could come from congressional action—possibly in January—in further financial aid like the Marshall Plan or in loans or gifts of raw materials needed in Britain's arms program

Jr. Red Cross Enrollment To Begin

Leaders Hope Every School Child Will Join Organization

The annual fall enrollment of the American Junior Red Cross will open Thursday in the Marion County Schools it was announced today by Mrs Marvin Brown Junior Red Cross Chairman of the Marion County Chapter of the American Red Cross

Efforts will be made to enroll every elementary and secondary school for the calendar year 1952 Mrs Brown states It is increasingly important that schools be ready to assist in the traditional services of the Red Cross in the local community and also in the world community, she adds Last year 19,334 783 boys and girls in private, public and parochial schools throughout the United States and its territories were included in national membership Also children in 34 American Schools in Japan and Okinawa were for the first time enrolled, even though outside the chapter jurisdiction

Through the activities shared by Junior Red Cross members children feel a sense of responsibility for the lonely, the homeless and those who have sacrificed physical and mental health to give American children the right to attend school

The enrollment closes Nov 15 The reward of a Junior Red Cross member is the deep satisfaction that comes when one recognizes and meets human needs, Mrs Brown states.

15 McMillen Men Attend Convention

Fifteen Marion men will be among 250 key personnel of the McMillen Feed Mills, Inc, of Ohio to attend the company's 17th annual sales convention, Thursday and Friday, Nov 1 and 2, at French Lick, Ind, according to H W McMillen, executive vice president.

Those attending are Howard Buck, Robert Syster, Charles Christiansen, Max Kernen Tim Wiant, Robert Fay, Robert Bumgerdner, Norman Winslow, Willis Cook, Richard Thomas, Paul Wolf, Ed Gustafson, Richard Marshall, John Shoup and Harry Miller

Fred O Hair, president of the Central National Bank of Greencastle Ind, will be the featured speaker

The meeting will be devoted to sales, advertising and merchandising plans and policies for the coming year He said recent developments by McMillen feed research expected to have far-reaching significance for livestock production and the feed industry, would be discussed

The heaviest atom yet discovered, californium, is 244 times as heavy as the lightest atom of hydrogen, which is the lighest known

AROUND LONG TIME

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—George Weiss, 56-year-old man behind the scenes in the New York Yankees' string of baseball championships, has signed a long term contract as vice president and general manager of the world champions. Weiss' contract still had another year to run but Dan Topping, president and co-owner of the club, yesterday said the agreement had been destroyed and a new one signed.

Illinois Bars Louis From State Bouts

Will Be Denied License for His "Own Well Being"

CHICAGO, Oct. 31—(AP)—If Joe Louis decides to fit another comeback trail he will have to detour Illinois.

The Illinois Athletic Commission will deny him permission to fight in this state, for his own well being.

Chairman Joe Triner said Louis "should not take chances of being hurt . . . he's been a great part of the game, but he should quit before it's too late.

For Own Good

"If Louis continues to fight, and if he ever applies for a license to fight in Illinois, it will be denied for his own good."

Commissioners Lou Radzienda and Ralph Metcale agree.

"If Louis does not retire of his own accord, the National Boxing Association should retire him for his own sake," said Radzienda. "I am suggesting this in a letter to Dave Rochon (N.B.A. president) in Montreal."

Radzienda is a member of the N.B.A.'s suspensions and appeals committee. Triner is a member of the N.B.A. executive committee.

The 37-year-old former heavyweight king, belted through the ropes by Rocky Marciano in Madison Square Garden Friday night, has not announced retirement plans.

His attorney, Truman Gibson, secretary of the International Boxing Club, said he did not believe Louis would try another comeback.

No Plans

"Judging from what Joe has told me, I am reasonably sure he has no plans for future fights," Gibson observed. "I talked with Marshall Miles (Louis' manager) and he said there were no plans for Louis to continue fighting—that Louis was through."

Gibson said he expects Joe to announce his plans for the future when he returned from an exhibition tour of Japan. He is to leave New York Nov. 10.

Meanwhile, Louis' income tax indebtedness, reportedly about $100,000, may be ironed out by a compromise settlement But Joe will have to give up fighting to bring this about.

John T. Jarecki, collector of internal revenue for the northern Illinois district, said a compromise is possible if Louis intends to quit the ring and proves his inability to pay his full back tax.

Southern Cal, Army on TV

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct 31—Top intersectional game slated for this Saturday, Nov. 3, Army vs. Southern California, played in New York's Yankee Stadium will be telecast by WLW-C. Columbus, and 23 other N.B.C. TV stations.

It is the first time since the Oct. 13 clash between Notre Dame and Southern Methodist that a game on the NCAA-Westinghouse card will be seen in Salt Lake City and via three stations in California.

Saturday is another "intersectional" day on the NCAA-Westinghouse schedule, and while the Army-USC fracas is being seen throughout the Midwest, West and far west, Illinois and Michigan, playing at Champaign, Ill. will be seen throughout the Eastern and Southeastern sections of the country.

Twelve station areas in the country are blacked-out this week in accordance with the N C A A. specifications that no station carry more than seven games during the nine-week experimental period.

Undefeated - untied Southern Cal, venturing east for the first time this year faces a double obstacle, change in climate and a steadily improving Army team, rebuilt this season by Coach Red Blaik.

Next Saturday, Nov. 10, WLW-C telecasts the Navy - Maryland game at Baltimore, Again, it's an intersectional day on the N.C. A.A.-Westinghouse card, with the Michigan-Notre Dame game being seen in the East and Southeast.

DAVIS CUPPERS OFF

LOS ANGELES, Oct 31—(AP)—The United States Davis Cup team left by plane for Honolulu today after a final drill on the courts of the Valley Hunt Club in suburban Pasadena. The cup challengers will play two days in Honolulu before continuing to Australia where they will meet the Swedish team and, if they win, the Australians.

PLAN SUPPER AT MARSEILLES

The Marseilles Community Club will hold a ham and chicken supper Friday evening at the Marseilles School. Serving will start at 5:30 p.m The club will use the proceeds of this supper to help finance its project for the school year. This project is to establish a fund to improve the artificial lighting in the elementary rooms

Prexies Battered for Homecoming Game

Still in the running for the Buckeye League honors, Harding's bruised and battered Presidents will meet a strong Columbus South eleven in a homecoming game at the stadium Friday night.

Coach Pete Howison's gridders are nursing aches and pains after their loss to unbeaten Ashland last Thursday, but may be ready for limited service by gametime.

Disability List

Tom McClain, double-duty halfback, is bothered by a shoulder injury along with Bill Winters, defensive back Chris Brady is also on the disabled list

Howison and his assistants put the Prexies through a long defensive pass drill yesterday in an attempt to stop South's best weapon, the forward pass. Assistant Coach George Keel did most of the throwing from the Columbus double wing formation.

In Running

With a 4-2-1 record, Harding could still nab the Buckeye League crown by upsetting powerful Sandusky and Fremont Ross in remaining games.

The only league blemish on the Prexy record was a 27-27 tie with Fostoria. They boast loop victories over Findlay and Bowling Green.

Crowning of the queen and a halftime show by the Harding marching band will augment homecoming ceremonies.

Detroit Sells Toledo Mud Hens Franchise

DETROIT, Oct. 31—(AP)—The reorganizing Detroit Tigers have sold Toledo, heaviest money loser in their eight-club farm system.

The Toledo franchise, Tiger officials announced last night, has been purchased by a group headed by Danny Menendez, business manager of the Hollywood Club of the Pacific Coast League

The sale price for the Class AAA American Association franchise was not announced but officials said that a package deal for it and "seven or eight" players brought "in excess of $100,000."

The ballpark in which the club, the Mud Hens, play was not involved in the sale. It is owned by other interests.

The Tigers paid a reported $200,000 for the franchise three years ago, and reportedly had lost an estimated $500,000 in operating the club over the past three seasons.

Menendez, and his associates, who include Oscar Salenger, former owner of the Milwaukee Brewers, and Kenneth and Robert Close, Toledo auto dealers, will take over operations next year.

Tebbetts Claims Dressen Object Of Ill Feelings

BOSTON, Oct. 31— (AP) — Manager Charlie Dressen of the Brooklyn Dodgers was cited as the object of the ill feeling of "many major league baseball players" last night by George (Birdie) Tebbets, Cleveland Indians catcher.

"We all were glad when Dressen blew the National League pennant in the playoff series with the New York Giants," Tebbetts said in a speech before 1,000 members of the Massachusetts Association of Insurance agents.

Dressen showed lack of sympathy and understanding for his players, as well as poor sportsmanship several times during the past season," Tebbetts explained. Birdie is engaged in the insurance business in Manchester, N. H, during the off-season

Dressen was not available for comment

"Leo Durocher, on the other hand, always gave full credit to his New York Giant players during their amazing pennant drive," Tebbetts said "But Dressen accused his rookie pitcher, Ely Palica, of being 'gutless' after he turned in a poor game while worrying about his sick wife and his high blood pressure disclosed by an army physical examination."

Blame Children For $10 Fire

Children playing with matches started a fire in a corner of a coal shed at the home of Mrs Earl Close, 496 Ballentine Ave. yesterday at 1:42 p.m. Fire Chief Owen Sifritt reported. The estimated loss was $10.

Firemen from the Central and East Mark St. stations answered the call.

A discarded cigaret was apparently the cause of a fire in an air well filled with leaves and debris in an alley next to the Columbus Ignition Co. at 146 S. Main St last night at 10:48. A window casing was scorched but no property loss was reported.

The alarm was answered by firemen from the Central station.

College Denies Rumor Players Doped for Game

YPSILANTI, Mich., Oct. 31—(AP)—Michigan State Normal College today sought to get to the bottom of "unfounded rumors that injured football players were doped with Novocaine and sent back into the game.

The rumors, officials said, apparently got started following the Monday dismissal of Merrill Hershey as athletic trainer for Huron teams. Hershey still is teaching physical education classes, however.

"We want to know who started these rumors," said J. H. McCulloch, head of the physical education department. He is one of the officials who is investigating the case.

Ralph Gilden, chairman of the board of athletic control, denied that Novocaine had ever been used "irregularly," or except under a doctor's supervision.

None of the players (so treated) ever returned to a game," he asserted.

Marciano Faces Contract Suit

BOSTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—The Boston Globe says today that Rocky Marciano will be brought into court next month on a breach of contract suit by a Brockton neighbor who recently lost an attempt to be declared the fighter's legal manager.

Sports Editor Jerry Nason wrote that Generoso (Gene) Caggiano, who claims to be Marciano's first manager, will sue both the heavyweight belter and Al Weill, New York matchmaker

Mason said he was informed Marciano will be sued for breach of contract and Weill for "Malicious interference."

Ohioan Named Back of Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—Dick Kazmaier, 20-year-old Princeton All-America from Maumee, O., had another accolade bestowed on his slender shoulders today when he was named the football back of the week.

Hailed as one of the greatest offensive performers in Princeton's gridiron history, Kazmaier won the weekly Associated Press poll after leading the Tigers to a 53-15 victory over Cornell for their 18th successive victory.

Here's what Kazmaier did to win the honors:

Completed 15 of 17 passes, three for touchdowns.

Scored two touchdowns.

Gained 236 yards through the air.

Carried the ball 18 times for 126 yards.

Nine other players were nominated at least once for top honors among the backs.

The list:

Johnny Karras, Illinois; Billy Tidwell, Texas Aggies, Jack Scarbath, Maryland, Gary Kerkorian, Stanford; Hank Lauricella, Tennessee; Ray McKown, Texas Christian; Ollie Matson, San Francisco; Eddie Crowder, Oklahoma, and Junior Arterburn, Texas Tech

THROUGH THE SPORTSCOPE with A. L. McCLAIN

OFF THE FIELD. It is entirely possible that a big share of Ashland's victory over Harding, 19-6, last Thursday night on the A's field was won before the game commenced.

Ashland Times-Gazette Sports Editor Don Beattie donated most of his pages to the coming battle while townspeople and students alike fired the footballers with the notion that winning was the most important thing since the second front.

And as the score indicates the psychological game worked.

BIG ONE. This isn't to say that the Prexies were without a will to win, their spirit has been excellent all season, but it is doubtful it could possibly have matched the Spartan feeling of the aroused A's.

Although the Ashland team was in a position to concentrate all on one "big game," it is doubtful that it would be advisable for the Prexies to do so

Harding was Ashland's only big contest among a schedule of mostly setsups while Coach Pete Howison and his youngsters have a "loaded" bill of fare.

SUICIDE. With games against Columbus South, Sandusky, and Fremont Ross coming up it would have been suicide to shoot the works against Ashland. The result would have been a natural letdown.

Ashland is faced with the same problem for the next contest, but it is likely that they will still have enough to win their eighth straight.

The setup brings to mind a talk we had with Bo McMillen, then Indiana University coach, after the '41 season. McMillen's Hoosiers had been upset by little University of Detroit, despite the appearance of All-American Billy Hillenbrand in the lineup

NOTHING TO GAIN. We asked the silver-haired pilot when his Indiana eleven was going to play Gus Dorais' Titans again.

Bo shook his head sadly. We lost, but it wouldn't have meant anything to win The feeling would have been so what—you're bigger than they are Dorais' team would have been a hero either way.

Which brings us back to Harding and Ashland The A's had everything to win and nothing to lose in the encounter.

As it was they won and they are to be commended for such. But if the A's were meeting a team as big as the Presidents this coming Friday we wouldn't bet on them. You can get out your "yea, team!" placards one week, but it won't work the following game.

SAWYER SIGNS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31 —(AP)—Eddie Sawyer was resigned yesterday as manager of the Philadelphia Phillies. The 41-year-old one time college professor thus became the first manager in modern Phils history to win a three-year managerial contract. Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but Owner Bob Carpenter did say they provide a bonus based on attendance during the next three season. Unconfirmed reports have it that Sawyer will be paid a salary of $25,000 a year.

Hall of Fame Footballers To Meet in Future

Names Like Strong, Pudge Heffelfinger, Hart and Others

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—After the first hall of fame football game a year ago, the All-America players who turned out to make a great occasion out of that rain-drenched affair decided to form a permanent association. . . . They had discovered that they got a bigger kick out of seeing one another than the fans got out of seeing them . . . So they'll hold an organizational meeting at New Brunswick, N. J., where the hall of fame is to be built when enough dough is collected, after next Saturday's second reunion . . . About 45 All-America players, from oldsters who were picked by Walter Camp back in the 90's to those who made it last year, are expected to be there to break bread, tilt glasses and exchange reminiscences—guys like Pudge Heffelfinger, Eddie Hart, Bill Hollenbach, Century Milstead, Ken Strong, Herb Stein and Alex Wojciechowicz . . . three whose names are on the acceptance list—"Heff," Don Hutson and Bob Suffridge—were named to the All-Time All-America by the nation's sportswriters and sportscasters by way of an Associated Press poll last spring and thus will be considered for election to the hall of fame when the honors court holds its first meeting this week end.

When Tommy Porter was given his first trial as a pitcher for his little league team in Santa Monica, Calif., he took his place on the mound, peered at the catcher and shook his head in obvious disagreement. Finally he smiled and made the pitch . . . This continued for some time and the puzzled catcher, Billy Peterson, finally called for time out to talk to Manager Sam Porter. . . . "Tommy is continually making faces at me and I don't get it," Billy complained . . . Porter went to the mound to ask how come. . . . "I know we haven't any signals," Tommy explained, "but every TV show of a ball game has the pitcher nodding or shaking his head, so I thought I'd better do the same because this is my tryout."

Georgia Coach Wally Butts believes his sophomore quarterback, Zeke Bratkowski, will develop into one of the greatest passing stars in southern football. . . . Vince Di Francesca, former Northwestern U. guard, is compiling a notable record as coach at Western Illinois College—won 22 of 24 in three seasons. . . . Jake Mintz won't admit it, but he's almost glad Jersey Joe Walcott beat his tiger, Ezzard Charles. Jake now feels he will be manager of the first heavyweight champ ever to regain the crown.

Crack of the week (from Iowa of course): "Since the Johnny Bright incident we've finally learned what the letters A and M in Oklahoma A. and M. mean abuse and mayhem."

90% For! 10% Against

Railroad workers are represented by 23 standard unions. By mutual agreement, 20 of these unions—comprising about 1,200,000 men, or more than 90%—are working under wages and rules agreed to by them and the railroads. But leaders of three unions—with only about 130,000 men, or less than 10%—still refuse, after more than a year of negotiations, to accept similar wage and rules agreements. These are even more favorable than the terms recommended by the Emergency Board appointed by the President.

Time to settle...

Yes, it certainly seems to be finally about time that the leaders of the three unions stop their delaying tactics—their quibbling. But the leaders of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Order of Railway Conductors continue to refuse. They continue a course of dillying and dallying. It is definitely time to END THIS QUIBBLING!

On June 15, 1950, an Emergency Board appointed by the President under the terms of the Railway Labor Act—an Act largely fathered by the unions themselves—made its recommendations on certain wage and working conditions ("rules" in railroad language) which had been in dispute between employes and the railroads.

More Than 90% of Employes Accept

Since then, terms equal to, or better than the Board recommendations have been accepted by about 1,200,000 railroad employes—more than 90% of the total of all workers. They are represented by 20 of the 23 standard railroad unions.

Less Than 10% Refuse

But three unions—with about 130,000 men, or less than 10% of the total—have refused to accept, even after months of negotiations. These three unions are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Order of Railway Conductors. These are three of the so-called "operating" unions. Already the highest paid men in the industry, their leaders demand still further advantages over other workers.

In all, there are about 270,000 operating employes. But not all of them, by any means, are represented by BLE, BLF&E, or ORC. As a matter of fact, less than half—132,000 to be exact—are in these three unions. More than half—about 140,000—are in other unions, principally the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. What makes the whole situation so hard to understand is that these 140,000 operating employes are working under wages and rules which the leaders of the other 130,000 say they cannot agree to.

What Do the Railroads Offer?

They offer these three unions the same settlement which was contained in a Memorandum of Agreement signed at the White House on December 21, 1950, by four brotherhoods and the railroads. Later these brotherhoods sought to repudiate this agreement. But on May 25, 1951, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen signed a complete agreement carrying out the principles of the Memorandum Agreement of December 21. They have been working under this agreement since May 25.

What About Wages?

Under the terms of the agreement, yard engineers, firemen and conductors would now be receiving a wage increase of 34 cents an hour ($2.72 a day) and road engineers, firemen and conductors would now be receiving an increase of 19½ cents an hour ($1.56 per day). Large sums of retroactive pay have already accrued and if the agreement is carried out, will be paid promptly.

What About "Cost of Living" Increases?

The White House Agreement includes an "escalator" clause under which wages will be geared to changes in the Government's cost-of-living index. Two such increases—April and July, 1951—have already been paid to the 90% of railroad employes covered by signed agreements.

What About the 40-Hour Week?

The White House Agreement calls for the establishment of the 40-hour week in principle for employes in yard service. The employes can have it any time after January 1, 1952, provided the manpower situation is such that the railroads can get enough men to perform the work with reasonable regularity at straight time rates. If the parties do not agree on the question of availability of manpower, the White House Agreement provides arbitration by a referee appointed by the President.

What Else Do the Union Leaders Demand?

The continued quibbling of the leaders of the three unions has to do principally with rules changes, which have already been agreed to by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Of these, the principal one seems to be that having to do with so-called "interdivisional service"—runs which take in two or more seniority districts.

The union leaders would bar progress and efficiency in the industry, and better service to the public, by maintaining a situation where they can arbitrarily stop a railroad from establishing such interdivisional runs. The carriers propose that if a railroad wishes to set up an interdivisional run, the railroad and the unions should try to agree on such run and the conditions which should surround its establishment, and if the railroad and the unions can't agree, the matter will be submitted to arbitration.

But the three union leaders still refuse.

Rules Can Be Arbitrated

The railroads have not only offered these three unions the same rules agreed to by the BRT and covered by the White House Agreement, but have even agreed to submit such rules to arbitration.

The Industry Pattern Is Fixed

With the pattern so firmly established in the railroad industry, it seems fair to suggest that the leaders of BLE, BLF&E, and ORC stop their quibbling and take action to make the railroad labor picture 100% complete. Certainly today's economic and international situation calls for a united front. And certainly no good reason has been advanced why these three unions should be preferred over all other railroad employes.

Chinese Speaker Lost, Name Americanized

ST LOUIS—(UP)—Convention officials worried when they could not locate one of the delegates to the American College of Hospital Administrators' meeting.

Not only could they not find Dr. Hu Shih, principal speaker at the main banquet and, formerly Chinese Ambassador to the U. S., but a hotel reservation made for him had disappeared.

Finally, Dr. Hu Shih showed up in person and the Chinese mystery of the missing reservation also was solved. The room clerk had listed it as "Hugh Smith."

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

That was good news Mrs. Rosenberg brought to the fellows in Korea . . . they'll all be home soon and their brothers will be there.

We have several good plans for troop rotation but none for victory.

Remember the boy who saved Holland by plugging the leak in the dike with his thumb until it could be fixed? Our planners would have rounded up 300,000 more boys with thumbs instead of fixing the leak.

Then they would have worked out a rotation system as other boys grew to man-thumb size.

Eventually every man with a thumb would have served and the leak would still be there.

It would seem after these many months that it would be a time to give them a taste of what they wouldn't like.
